Abstract: In a democracy, politics is supposed to represent the voice of the people, wherein politicians are expected to fairly represent the expectations of the voters that voted them in. But this is an idealist perception. In reality, politics has become a business, often family business, where a small group of people control the 'affairs' of politics in an oligarchy, for selfish gains – monetary or otherwise. The present scenario of the Indian politics is entirely different from the politics of previous years. The change in the present scenario of the politics gives a great indication of revolution. Similarly the level of the politics are now goes too down, too personalized and too biased on the name of caste, religion and region. The present paper gives an insight of changing scenario of Indian politics in brief.

Key Words: Politics, democracy, electorate, parties, voters.

1. INTRODUCTION:

In the general opinion democracy is one of the best administration policies for any nation. But it also needs awareness of the citizen of such nation. India is one of the best examples of the democracy in the world. But, are the citizens of the India aware about their vote power. It is questionable that after political awareness voter of India are blind voter, biased voter and follower voter. A big educated mass of India not are taking much interest in voting because they knows that they are helpless in front of bulk of illiterate biased voter and unfit candidate both.

On the other side, by means of democracy, politics is invented to correspond to the voice of the people, wherein politicians are expected to moderately symbolize the outlook of the voters. It is an idealist observation. In realism, politics has be converted into a business, over and over again family business, anywhere a tiny group of public manage the 'affairs' of politics in an oligarchy, for selfish gains, kingdom, monetary or else.

Recently, elections of 2017-18 conducted in various state concluded that such elections creates one feel the need to step back and fire a question – is this situation of nation politics and what is its actual impact on India?

These elections would be account as intense fight put up by BJP, 'led by no less a person than the Prime Minister himself', except it will as well be recognize for the vitiated ambience underneath which it was struggle, by means of all parties indulging in vicious name calling and obvious efforts to polarize the voters.

Poll public speaking throughout elections is usual in India except this time the levels were a lot personal and lower than the belt. Statement of leaders were disappointing and wondering where the political discourse.

2. Untaught Leader:

An extensive piece of the issue can be followed to the way that most politicians are either semi-educated or insignificantly educated having suspect degrees that are more a convention than any instructive esteem. There is a reasonable qualification among the better educated politicians and those with poor instructive foundations and this hole is reflected in their political trade, either inside the gathering or in open life. It is basic that we incorporate more educated politicians to hold office than the individuals who with low quality of instruction.

3. Awful Mouth for Notice:

All the recent elections were influence from dirty politics. Maximum leaders and parties were fighting only for chair. State and Nation elections brought out entomb party sassing as well as intra-party. It is being found on account of leaders that they are looking at his own gathering by abusing any one with animal title and behaviour. This isn't the first run through the similarity of an animal title and behaviour was utilized which denoted the tacky dimensions of politics being drilled in India. This is in no way, shape or form limited to opposition parties alone, all parties face comparable circumstances with almost no move made to reign in these untrustworthy politicians

4. Preference of Illicit:

The threat to free and reasonable politics in India exudes from the main driver of the issue and that is the association of crooks in dynamic politics. Investigate the Bihar elections this year. Out of a complete 3,450 candidates challenging the elections, 1038 candidates (38%) had criminal bodies of evidence against them. 796 candidates (23%) had genuine criminal cases pending which included homicide, endeavour to kill, wrongdoings against ladies, hijacking, and making public disharmony.

So where does democracy stand an opportunity to be free and reasonable? Furthermore, is this reasonable for other educated and genuine politicians who have entered politics to have a constructive outcome to individuals' lives?

5. Rejection of Negative Politics:

All parties have a considerable amount of candidates with a criminal foundation who are offered tickets to represent elections, and in this way each gathering's leadership must acknowledge obligation regarding the low quality of politics being polished today. The nation over, the young are communicating their dissatisfaction and dismissing the low dimension of politics being happened by all parties, and has been conveying everything that needs to be conveyed via web-based networking media and different gatherings. This is the prime motivation behind why they are unfit to associate with old world political leaders and their polarizing politics, and are along these lines, reluctant to approach and partake in dynamic politics

Expanding prejudice is immediate aftermath of outrageous philosophies that trust everybody must pursue their way and political conviction. This goes in opposition to the ideals of a free democracy where everybody has the option to be allowed to pursue any way of life, religion or political philosophy, and where all choices are taken through dialogs and discussion.

The adolescent should admire individuals in open life as good examples in the public arena and when politicians corrupt themselves in broad daylight, they risk losing all regard from the young as well as all individuals from society.

Shockingly, this is the ground circumstance today and along these lines, there is a critical requirement for every political gathering to meet up and talk about how to improve the nature of politics in the nation.

6. Trust in Politics:

The Anna Hazare development was an endeavour towards cleaning politics however lost steam in the wake of getting an energetic reaction from the young of this nation. At the time, there was not kidding trust that the political world class will tune in and change the nature of politics yet that trust was brief. Today, there is dissatisfaction and disillusionment with the political leadership and except if politicians crosswise over partisan principals regard to this call for change, they risk losing whatever is left of their validity.

The issue is that a couple of awful politicians are reliably in charge of ruining the notoriety of the whole political class. Numerous politicians, who are genuine, have good intentions and order the regard of the basic man, discover their voices being suffocated in the bedlam of verbally abusing and degenerate politics. A compulsion of politics keeps down the leadership from making positive move.

7. Action for Future:

There is a dire requirement for all parties to talk about and banter building up a base standard of convention in open life that all parties must guarantee and pursue, in and outside the Parliament. It is basic that each gathering has its own check and equalization guaranteeing that its leaders and gathering frameworks maintain a base standard of convention in open life. Also, there must be the wrong spot for savagery in any structure. Is that an excessive amount of too anticipate.
